Stress Related Bite Disorders with Donald N. Reid, DDS, FICOI Friday, February 24, 2017

Walk down any street and ask folks if they have an uncomfortable bite, headaches, face pain, ear pain, and sore teeth or feel they grind their teeth and more than likely you'll hear, "Oh yes, I've been told I have TMJ!" If they don't have those symptoms, chances are they know people that do. Conservative estimates are upwards of 40 million people in the USA alone fit that category! Stress-Related bite disorders are utterly mysterious and confusing to the majority of dentists yet we skillfully repair their teeth but miss a life changing opportunity to help them in ways beyond imagination. Additionally, dentists miss an opportunity to convert ordinary dental patients to 'Raving Fans.' Join Dr. Reid for a course as he utilizes animations he's created and case examples to help you see for yourself why literally millions of people continue to needlessly suffer from Stress-Related Jaw problems.

PARTICIPANTS WILL LEARN:

The main elements for a healthy, stable and comfortable bite; The causes and effects of improper bites; How lifestyle stressors influence the magnitude of patient's problems; What you really need to know about the TMJ to safely treat 98% of your patients; Step by step formula for predictable, successful splint treatments; How to turn a patient visit with a broken crown into comprehensive restorative outcomes; Various treatment options to solve patient's problems and the communication skills "You need to know"; How to interview patients before you look in their mouths to ensure they'll accept you and what you offer them; A simplistic approach to the most comprehensive exam your patients ever had.

Dr. Don Reid lectures internationally on the diagnosis, evaluation and treatment of bite disorders, facially generated treatment planning and the health-centered Volitional practice. He teaches hands-on programs for treating the worn dentition as well as advises colleagues with clinical dilemmas. He is published in leading dental journals and magazines.

Dr. Reid is the creator of BiteFX software animations which depict the destructive effects caused by malocclusions or temporal mandibular disorders. Dr. Peter Dawson's Center, as well as universities and private institutions around the globe, are using Dr. Reid's software to enhance student's comprehension of the human masticatory system.

Dr. Reid is a fellow of the International Congress of Oral Implantology, graduate of the Center for Advanced Dental Studies, Misch International Implant Institute and is both a pioneer and a founding Father of the Academy of Microscope Enhanced Dentistry. He is a long standing member of the American and California Dental Associations, Dental Organization for Conscious Sedation and the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry.
